But my own best practical advice is that he go to a jeweler and have a certain number of rings set aside within the price that he can afford and then take her with him to choose the one she likes best in this particular collection. In other words, the embarrassment of price is the one element that must not be allowed to come into the picture and it is avoided easily by the method suggested.

WORKING OUT OF IT

Wars inevitably come "the hard way" and when they're over it is natural for weary and straitened nations to try disposing of them the easy way. But as some fact-facing commentators are now pointing out, there is no easy way for that process, either. Natural forces, backed by intelligent and courageous leaders, must be allowed to work their way out. A clear-headed commentator writes in the Cleveland Plain Dealer that this is where the government at Washington is going wrong. He observes:

"It is unwilling to allow a free play of the economic forces governing production, decontrol the nation's economy in such a way as to escape the consequences of the appalling wastefulness and destruction which is the inevitable concomitant of modern warfare.

He insists that we might as well face the

This is one more proof of the uncertainty of a playwright's life. In 1914 "On Trial" made enough money for Rice to live on comfortably for several years. This was fortunate for him. Not for 15 years did he have another real hit. Then came his masterpiece, "Street Scene", best of all plays about New York City reproducing its atmosphere. So lifelike is it that people used to bet that they could identify the particular apartment house on whose steps most of the action occurred.

Most New Yorkers are reputed to come from somewhere else. Rice is emphatically not of this breed. He was born in New York | been an infected throat followed a few weeks later and has lived there as much as he possibly by an attack of rheumatic fever-inflammation of could. His plays deals with the little fellow, the victim of judicial, financial or official oppression. Rice is still in his 50's and should pens that, when the inflamed lining of the heart be able to write many more good plays.

GERMAN LOSSES

How big were German losses during the war? Saul K. Padover, a historian who was a member of the army's Psychological Warfare Division, has been trying to find out, and records his results in The Nation. By examining parish records and finding out the percentage of dead that these revealed, he estimates that two and a half per cent of the population were killed up to September, 1944. | matic fever and the damage to the heart is so great His records stop then; there may have been an increase in the rate as the German army collapsed.

Two and a half per cent of Germany's population of 75,000,000 would give 1,875,-000. Later losses, and the deaths of civilians Anderson in Medical Journal of Australia. The paduring air raids would, according to Mr. Padover, bring the number up to 2,875,000. This was over a million more than the 1,775,000 German dead in World War I, but from the German point of view, compares favorably with the number of deaths which they caused among civilians of other countries. From the standpoint of human losses, Germany did not do so badly in World War

There are a good many million Nazis still hoping to make serious trouble later. They will do so, if let.

'These Days' By George E. Sokolsky

PUPPET POLAND

The Polish people cannot desire the destruction of Spain either by renewed civil war or by foreign attack. The two peoples are too closely related by strong religious bonds. In fact, for centuries the two most completely Roman Catholic countries on continental Europe have been Poland and Spain. Both the Polish and the Spanish peoples are now held in thrall by police-governments which do not permit freedom of expression in any form.

Poland is now the property of Soviet Russia and its government is a Communist puppet. Poland was reduced to this condition at Yalta with the consent of the President of the United States and the Prime Minister of Great Britain. There-fore, to embarrass Great Britain and the United States, Puppet Poland demands that U.N. take some action over Spain. That, of course, will re-move Iran from the headlines. It will divert attention from Russia's expanding imperialism in Europe and Asia. It confounds and confuses the American policy of making U.N. an instrument of justice for small nations.

And to make the issue dramatic, Spain is accused of harboring "Nazi refugee-scientists" who are working on the atomic bomb! The Poles demand that Spain be forced to expel these "Nazi refugee-scientists" so that they might be put into Russian concentration camps until they agree to do research work for Soviet Russia on the atomic bomb! And if you want to know precisely what that means, read Kravchenko's "I Chose Freedom."

The bearer of these tidings to U.N. from Puppet Poland is Oscar Lange, ambassador from the Puppet to the United States, but until a year ago an American citizen and a member of P.A.C. He renounced his citizenship of our country last July to get the ambassadorship from Poland. Both events occurred almost simultaneously. That seems to satisfy our State Department although at the time it seemed to many that Professor Lange was selling a birthright for a mess of pot-tage. Since his renunciation of his American citizenship, Ambassador Lange has been a talkative shadow of the taciturn Soviet Ambassador Gromyko. Of course, Dr. Lange does what he is told to do, as all ambassadors do-it is not his personal fault that he wants "Nazi refugee-scientists" turned into slaves in some Siberian or Turkestan laboratory where the Russians are now engaged in trying to decipher American thinking on atomic fission. These "refugee-scientists," Nazi or other-wise, might become extremely useful if properly

Now, Franco is an unpopular figure in the Unitmand and prices, because it is afraid of what might happen. Coupled with this fear is a childlike faith in its ability to manage and ler belonged to the same union of power-grabbers; they all operated, and only the dead ones have ceased to operate, police-governments in which the life of a human being is as important and as valuable as the life of a louse. I do not want to be listed as directly or indirectly favoring, supporting or mitigating the crimes of any member, living or Inevitable concomitant of modern wartare. He insists that we might as well face the fact that there is no easy way, and act accordingly, taking whatever punishment or loss comes our way. That will hurt—but not so much in the long run as if we balk and hesitate and fumble.

The wealth our great rivers bear in much to the sea is worth more than all their argosies.

When a man or woman of middle age, apparently healthy, dies suddenly of heart disease it is often because of an attack or attacks of rheumatic fever as a child or young adult. The usual history has a joint or joints, high temperature, possible inflammation of lining of heart because of poisons in the blood. When the attack passes over it often hapheals, there is hard fibrous tissue formed which interferes with the working of the valves of the heart and so prevents the valve tissue closing the opening completely between the chambers of the heart. This is the cause of a leaking heart and the murmurs.

However, despite the damage thus done the heart by the attack of rheumatic fever the heart muscle can overcome this leakage and pump enough blood for the body's needs just as a leaking pump can pump enough water for the needs of the house hold. This is called a compensated heart, because the strength of the heart muscle, or increase in its strength, is able to compensate or make up for the leak in the valve or valves. This is a satisfactory arrangement but the individual gets gradually older or may have another or further attacks of rheuthat the heart muscle cannot pump enough blood and the heart fails-heart failure.

The treatment of patients who are recovering from rheumatic fever is rest in bed for a long time. and rest in bed even in case of any slight illness to avoid strain on the heart.

He insists that we might as well face the fact that there is no easy way, and act accordingly, taking whatever punishment or so much in the long run as if we balk and hesitate and fumble.

This is one more proof of the uncertainty of a playwright's life. In 1914 "On Trial" made enough money for Rice to live on comfortably for several years. This was fortunate for him. Not for 15 years did he have another real hit. Then came his masterpiece, "Street Scene", best of all plays about New York City reproducing its atmosphere. So lifelike is it that people used to bet that they could identify the particular apartment house on whose steps most of the action occurred.

Most New Yorkers are reputed to come from somewhere else. Rice is emphatically not of this breed. He was born in New York and has lived there as much as he possibly could. His plays deals with the little fellow. the victim of judicial, financial or official oppression. Rice is still in his 50's and should be able to write many more good plays.

How big were German losses during the war? Saul K. Padover, a historian who was fare Division, has been trying to find out, ! and records his results in The Nation. Later losses, and the deaths of civilians | during air raids would, according to Mr. Padever, bring the number up to 2.875,000. This was ever a number more than the 1.775.6% German deas in World War I, but from the German point of view, compares favorably with the number of deaths which ! they caused among civilians of other countries. PUPPET POLAND

The Polish people cannot desire the destruction of Spain either by renewed civil war or by foreign attack. The two peoples are too closely related by strong religious bonds. In fact, for centuries the two most completely Roman Catholic countries on continental Europe have been Poland and Spain. The Associated Press is excussively entitled to the use for republication of all revs abstacles credited to it or not otherwise credited to this paper and also the local news published linear.

All rights of republication of special dispatches nerein needs reserved.

Both the Polish and the Spanish peoples are now held in thrall by police-governments which do not permit freedom of expression in any form.

Poland is now the property of Soviet Russia and its government is a Communist puppet. Poland was reduced to this condition at Yalta with the consent of the President of the United States and the Prime Minister of Great Britain. There fore, to embarrays Great Britain and the United States, Pupper Poland demands that U.N. take some action over Spain. That, of course, will rehave itan from the headines. It will divert attention from Russia's expanding imperialism in Europe and Asia. It contounds and confuses the American policy of making U.N. an instrument of justice for small nations.

And to make the issue dramatic, Spain is accused of harboring "Nazi refugee-scientists" who are working on the atomic bomb! The Poles de-mand that Spain be forced to expel these "Nazi refugee-scientists' so that they might be put into Russian concentration camps until they agree to do research work for Soviet Russia on the atomic bomb! And if you want to know precisely what that means, read Kravchenko's "I Chose Freedom." The bearer of these tidings to U.N. from Pup-

Markle Says Fire Truck Not at Hand

Several Weeks May Elapse Before Truck Arrives; Money Needed

Wilson Markle, Captain, of the Hurley Fire Company says that a number of persons have received the impression that the new truck which the company has decided to purchase for use of the fire district is already on hand. The truck is surplus Army equipment and while it is available for purchase by the Hurley Company, which has the proper priority rating to secure it, some weeks may elapse before details of the transaction have been completed and the machine can be delivered.

Further, Captain Markle said, the company still needs several hundred dollars to make up the purchase price of the truck. The money is being secured through loans from members and residents of the fire district, it being understood that all contributions for this purpose, unless made as absolute donations, will be repaid later. The company plans activities of various kinds to raise the money necessary to repay these loans. The truck which it is planned to purchase is an International truck and carries a 500 gallon capacity pumper and also a 500 gallon

After 276 days of drilling, the world's deepest producing oil well was brought in yesterday by Shell Oil Company at Weeks Island, near New Iberia, Louisiana.

Drilled to a total depth of 14,-301 feet, the well was plugged back to a producing level of 13,-778 feet, over two and one-half miles below the Louisiana swamplands. Tests indicate the new well has a large production capacity, but under the Louisiana system of proration, it will only be permitted to produce 380 barrels of crude oil per day. "The Weeks Island well is not the deepest hole ever drilled," A. J. Galloway, vice-president in charge of Shell's Texas-Gulf area, pointed out to newspaper men who; were present. "Several deeper ones have been drilled, chiefly in California and Texas, but they either turned out to be dry holes or produced insignificant amounts

Wilson Markle, Captain, of the Hurley Fire Company says that . . a number of persons have received the impression that the new truck which the company has decided to purchase for use of the fire district is already on hand.

The truck is surplus Army equipment and while it is available for purchase by the Hurley Company, which has the proper priority rating to secure it, some weeks may elapse before details of the transaction have been completed and the machine can be delivered. Further, Captain Markle said, the company still needs several hundred dollars to make up the money is being secured through loans from members and residents stood that all contributions for this purpose, unless made as absolute donations, will be repaid later. The company plans activities of various kinds to raise the money necessary

o repay these loans. The truck which it is planned to purchase is an International truck and carries a 500 gallon capacity pumper and also a 500 gallon booster tank.
